MONTHLY MEMBER SPOTLIGHT--XL7-TV

XL7-TV/Hometown Television is family-owned and has been providing local television since the mid-90s. Started by Dan Reynolds in Harrison, AR as a cable access station, Reynolds was able to acquire a broadcast license from the FCC after several years in business.

Since its inception, Gil Reynolds and his brother, Ian, were "roped" into helping Dan by doing anything from camera operation at sporting events to helping splice videos on VHS editing machines. The boys even produced their own shows in Jr High and High School.

A common misunderstanding in the public is that people have to pay for a service whether it's cable or satellite to watch television. Much like radio is free, television is free as well and all you need is a simple antenna to watch it. Anyone with an antenna can pick up the stations that Hometown TV can offer, and they can pick up other channels such as NBC, CBS, FOX, & ABC! For those with pay services, Mountain Home residents can watch XL7-TV through Suddenlink channel 22 and channel 15 in Salem and Viola. Through the Yelcot cable stations, you can access them on channels 70-75; in Harrison on channel 843 & 95.1; and Ritter channel 22.

The station offers .30 second or .60 advertising opportunities as well as other options through professionally produced video. XL7-TV prides itself in their competitive pricing comparative to other media stations. Because this is a locally, family-owned business, there is more than one skill set that comes to the table when you visit the station. Each of the Reynolds' can start a commercial or production for a client and complete the project through all phases from the start of the script writing to making the final edit. They are all excellent videographers, audio engineers, and editors. Gil manages the day to day operations in Mountain Home while his brother and father run the Harrison stations.

There is a marketing staff that is on hand to help clients find the marketing messages and strategies for business. Contact them at 1208 Commerce Drive, Mountain Home, AR 72653. 870-424-6957.
