Some call it vandalism; others call it school spirit. Whatever it is, shaving cream writing in the courtyard and on rooftops was a popular pastime.

At the first annual Powder Puff game, senior downs that gave the seniors a 14-0 victory over Senior David Mabury tests his ability to become a GQ mannequin. With borrowed hat and umbrella, he strikes a questionable pose.

Getting back to nature, Michele Painter, Melinda Mason, Vanessa Crawford, Buffie Bump, and Karen Watson prepare to go trick-or-treat-

Lady Bombers Cindy Sanford, Sherrill Thompson, and Lisa Petrino finish off a bump, set, spike routine for a point in the second win over Harrison.

Rhonda Albright Crystal Andrews Satu Aro Vicki Autry

Tim Baltzell Brian Beijen Donna Bergman Lisa Bias

the last time to sit for a picture for the and we make sure, even if the means are not lock on a rusty locker, the last chance to for the bonfire. yell "Proud to be a Bomber," the last year, the senior year.

chance to prepare for the future; others generate even more enthusiasm about life, realizing that carefree days are ending. We reloften, and treasure each memory we make. us.

Being a senior brings with it several lasts. For some this graduation ceremony may be For our last school pictures, we go to extra only the first of many. But for others it is to be assured that we leave others remembering us at our best.

The week of the last homecoming, seniors

The last time to attend a Harrison bonfire, make sure their last float is a winning one; vearbook, the last time to work a stubborn completely honest, to have the most boxes

Our last prom gives us beautiful memories whether we go with the one in our dreams We approach everything with a new spirit. or just a close friend. We all remember the Some become more serious about the last last awards assembly we sit through, for at last it is we who are being awarded for accomplishments that we've had. Our last baccalaureate service holds a special meanish everything more, hug each other more ing for us because the message is finally for effort and spend unreal amounts of money the first and last. For some it is the last time to say good-bye, and for all it is the last time we are seniors of MHHS.

Looking good from the waist up at least, Ken Geter and Mary Linn prepare to have their final high school class pictures taken.

Marsha Bridgeman Daniel Briscoe Buffie Bump Alec Burg

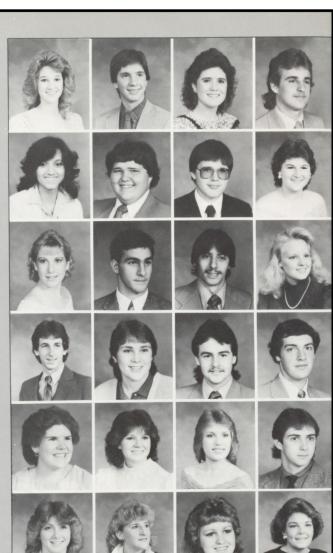

Ximena Campos Dennis Cantrell Thomas Carpenter Loretta Carroll

Jeff Cooper Deanna Cornelius Solomon Cornelius Bobby Cox Sharon Crawford

Susan Crawford Vanessa Crawford Tammy Creech Kevin Darker

Lisa Davis Tiffany Defano Tammy Dement Melanie Dicello Joe Dillard

Bryan Carter John Carter Danette Cerney Victor Chalfant

Is It the End or Only the Beginning

Graduation day, the end of twelve years of laughter, tears and memories has come at last. From the time we entered the first grade, we wondered if this day would finally come. For some the realization that this is, in fact, the end of high school is hard to bear. Most aren't ready to accept that this may be the last time to see some people. Life doesn't even assure anyone that he or she will be in Mountain Home again. At first it may seem like the world has come to an end. Some may wonder what life holds in store. As seniors look to the future, they see themselves in a new situation, whether in college or on the job they have chosen. They see themselves making new friendships and memories. Anticipating their graduation day, Anne Smith and Bobby Cox try Grasping that piece of paper that says on caps and gowns "just to see how it feels." high school days have successfully come to a close, with a tear and smile, they take those first few awkward steps into adulthood and realize it is just the beginning.

In the Grandest Tradition

the class of 86's last year. This is a time for doing all the "high school" things that can  $\Gamma$  warned them "look but don't come too close;  $\Gamma$  m a senior." On this day the best seats on never be done when the year is over; this is a the courtyard wall were claimed and the untime for traditions.

When the doors opened on the first day of mores spitless. When the doors opened on the two school, there were proclamations of "Seniors school, there were proclamations of "Seniors Rule," "Bombers #1," or "We've only just College days, skip day, Pronto clubs, leaving after fourth hour, bonfires and Harrison of the grand traditions of across the courtyard; the toilet paper adorning the trees was a sure sign of the senior tradition of decorating the courtyard the dition is the attitude that overtakes all. An night before school begins.

As the last first day progressed, seniors greet- last, in the grandest tradition.

Thursday, August 23, 1985 the first day of ed each sophomore with an aloof stare that derclassmen felt intimidated and afraid. This was senior tradition #2, scare all sopho> games are some of the grand traditions of air of confidence, pride and touch of craziness grabs hold and hangs on until the very

Kenny Dobbins Ted Dockins Christy Dozier Jennifer Drake

Carson Ford Leslie Fortenberry Johnny Fowler Randy Fowler

Moments after her coronation as homecoming queen, Tammy Sexdent body at the pep ral

Caps and Skoal rings have become traditional apparel for some of MHHS. Here Ben Strider prepares to get rid of a little of his smokeless to-

Chandler Harp Stacy Harris Sharon Havens Dan Haynes

Cindy Holt Bill Holzhauser Melissa Hope Chris Hopman

Evelyn Howard Jody Hurst Buddy Johnson Pam Johnson

The few, the proud, the seniors of '86 will all agree that it hasn't always been smooth sailing these past 13 years. Even in first grade, problems arose like having to eat everything on our plates. Worse than that, we had to sit boy, girl, boy, girl in the cafeteria.

Moving to the fourth grade was another trauma as we changed school buildings and had to cope with changing classes.

Sixth and seventh grade was the beginning of a new way of life. We lost our carefree leisure time to athletics, band or club activities. In middle school, we finally acquired the privilege of having dances, but they were heavily chaperoned, and we still relied on our parents as our only means of transportation.

Once more we changed schools as we headed for junior high. We lost out position as top dogs of the school and had to compete with ninth graders. By the time we were on top again in ninth grade, we could get out driver's permits (although some didn't pass the first time) and learn first hand the

Finally at the high school our sophomore year, we found ourselves scared to death of the seniors, not knowing where to go, what to do, when to do it, or where to do it. Our junior year slowed down as we found out where everything was, but we had the anxiety of ACT and PSAT tests, and we discovered just how expensive a simple class ring could be.

The grand finale then arrived after the longest summer of our lives; we were at the top, #1 rated seniors. We began applying for colleges and doing everything that we could possibly do and sometimes getting away with it.

As the thirteenth year ended, we realize that it wasn't all smooth sailing. We had our bumps and our disappoints, trials and frustrations; but we made it; we survived it all, and we're ready for the next step.

Getting senior pictures made is sometimes confusing and nearly always expensive. Brian Schults, Tom Schmitz and Ted Dockins try to work out some of the details in an early morning photo session in the band hall.

Bending themselves into pretzels is one price Bomber athletes pay to play. No matter what the sport though, most would agree that the cost is worth it. These players warm up prior to the Batesville game.

Lee Ann Kroeger Mark Kueter Tracy Kunath Joe Larue

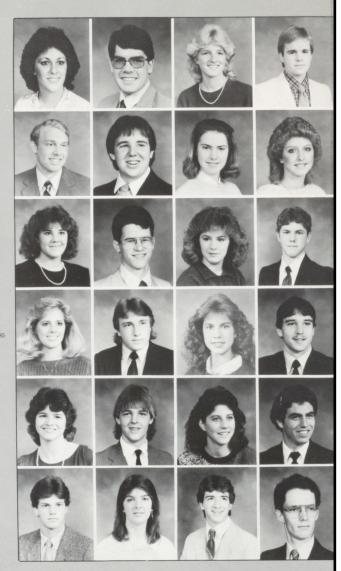

Wayne Lee Jim Liaromatis Mary Linn Darlene Little

Karen Maley Lester Martin Melinda Mason 1968-1985 Mike Mason

Cathy McConnelle Sean McDonald Rhonda McKee Troy McKee

Lance McQueen Brenda Mead Mark Medley Mark Mellinger

Dennis Messick Lori Michaels Linda Miller Heather Moore

Lisa Moore Bill Morris Melinda Mountcastle Tony Munter

From Dawn To Dusk

Early to bed early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise. This may be true, but in the life of a senior late night hours are very common. 6:00 a.m. the alarm clock sounds, a day in the life of a senior begins. Barely awake we prepare for school. 8:15 the bell rings. We begin a normal day at school. Going from class to class every day routine sometimes becomes a bit monotonous. Lunch finally rolls around, the time we all have been waiting for. After lunch we either go back to class, go home or go to work. Some jobs last only until 5:00 or 5:30. While other jobs lead us into the late evening.

After a long day of school and work, we must begin the homework that we have put off all week. But first we must watch our favorite night-time shows on television. By this time it is past 10:00; shall we do our homework or just go to bed? Sometimes we choose to do our homework while other times we choose to go to bed. Sometimes we come to English class without our 3200 completed and are not allowed to take the test, but the next time we stay up and make the extra effort to complete our 3200 or finish our journal.

The day in the life of a senior is a bit busy, but somehow we manage to get everything done. When graduation day comes around we realize that all the late nights were worth it.

Gaining perfection takes many hours of afterschool practice for Kayla Campbell and Doug Knight.

Kregg Partee and Randy Porter engage in a favorite early morning pastime for many students, gathering around the courtyard to talk to friends.

Collectors of Memories

All of us have memories both happy and sad. As seniors, we like to think that we have more memories than the juniors and sophomores. While this might not be true, we seniors share many of the same memories, both good and bad

We can remember our first day of school. For some it was a good memory. We discovered other people our own age and made new friends. For others, the remembrance of their fear and uncertainty at beginning school may cause others to consider it a bad memory.

Most of us can remember the happiness we experienced from having our first pets and the sorrow we experienced when it ran away or died.

Things that might have seemed very embarrassing at the time now are held in our memories as trivial and now funny as we have learned to laugh at ourselves. Falling down in front of a crowd of people, forgetting part of a performance, or ripping the seat of our pants all seemed to indicate of certain impending death. Now we can look back and realize they were only indications of being human.

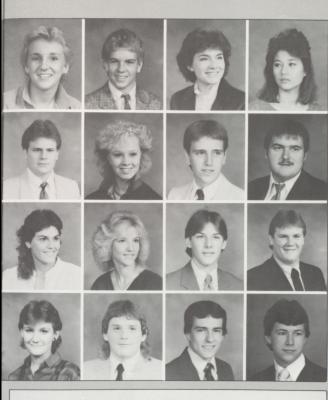

We all have special high school memories. We remember that one person that we could always tell our problems and he or she would give us just the right advice. We remember hating stuck lockers, flooded hallways and 3200 homework. But we can always cherish the memories of pep rallies, first love, and "decorating" the high school without getting caught.

Now our final year seems to be center of our whole life, but years from now we look back on all the special moments as only a chapter in our collection of memories.

He may not have a pedigree, but Christina Nigemann's puppy received preferential treatment.

Jill Neal Tracy Neitzel Christina Nigemann Jud Norris Julie Odegard Jennie O'Dell

Renee Okorn Rebecca Oliver Brian Padgett Michele Painter Justin Parks Marion Parks

Kregg Partee Greg Pelts Lisa Petrino Vickie Pickrell Shane Pinkston Randy Porter

Dawn Puckett Richard Pyeatt Stacy Qualls Dirk Quick Kris Quick Jerry Randolph

Escape from it all

When the pressures of life mount and begin to get us down, all of us begin to yearn for an escape, an outlet for the frustration, a way to forget even for a moment.

A major reliever of tension for many of us is a drive with the radio on full blast. But when gas is scarce, we'll usually settle for just the music.

Sometimes it feels like the weight of the world has been laid on our shoulders; but instead of getting down and depressed, some guys take to the woods with a gun to let off steam with the noise and excitement of the hunt.

Some play team sports and let out anger on the ball where there's less chance of retaliation. Others like jogging or similar solitary activities.

But whether it's sports, music, or simply a quiet walk by the lake, we all have a breaking point that warns us when it's time to escape from it all.

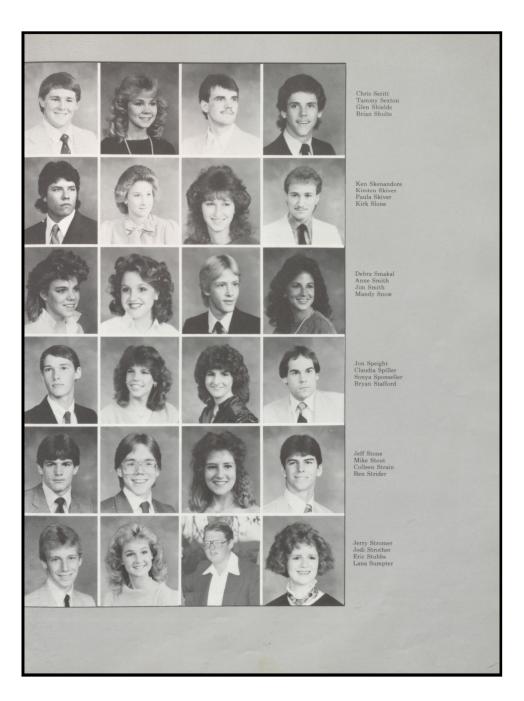

In an effort to escape from the pressures of life, seniors will sometimes go to ridiculous lengths. Blindfolded, Sato Aro and Laura Kramer give their victim, Don Yarbrough, a shave as Rhonda Gammill and Cheryl Wiggins observe. The activity was part of a church-sponsored fellowship.

Elizabeth Rather Ashley Roberts Robert Rodgers Jackie Rohr

Larry Schmitz Tom Schmitz Kursten Schuetz Dwayne Seats

Stephanie Sumpter Arthur Swanson Sherrill Thompson Brian Thorn

Richard Warrendorf Keith Watroba Karen Watson Frank Watts

Don Yarbrough Allan Zamonis Diane Zimdahl Craig Zubchevich

Several high school students are members of the Civil Air Patrol. Here a color guard of Mark Mellinger, Greg Pelts, Rick Heizler, and William Farris present the flags in a parade.

Eating ice cream with his face seems like fun for Larry Schmitz as he and the other seniors race to defeat the sophomores and juniors in an ice cream eating contest.

As fire consumed the boxes at the bonfire, it symbolized the Bombers' burning desire to defeat Harrison.

Lori Beck Scott Bickford Donny Bradshaw

H13E

Bomberettes Tresa Darr, Tracy Kunath, and Sherrill Thompson get into the Halloween spirit.

