Future Plans Heading Down Different Paths

The graduation caps with tassels flying created a picturesque scene as they sailed through the celebratory air. Different thoughts filled everyone's mind. Some looked into the past. "I remember gazing at the sixth graders and being in awe of how OLD they were." -Valerie Fraser. It's hard to believe we've been through so many torturous years of school. Many squinted into the future. The visions varied; no one had quite the same idea of what destiny had planned for them. Some pictured a rolling college campus and cram sessions in the wee hours of the morning. Others had a career planned in the honorable Armed Forces. "I'm going into the Navy. I'll get just as good of an education, except they'll pay for it." -Mike Hahaj. A group decided to settle down immediately, join the work force, and start a family. The adventurous types dreamed, with stars in their eyes, of distant lands. Who knew what they planned to do? "We're going elk-hunting in Canada; then down to Mexico." -Skippy Blumthal and Jason Simonis. Although we all started at basically the same point, MHHS, we all took different paths into the world of life.

Billy Lichtman, possibly anticipating a prosperous career selling Mary Kay Cosmetics, practices identifying the many different types of blush brushes.

Sadly, Rose Dickerson has not been properly taught the life-saving Heimlich Maneuver. Hopefully, Ken McDowell will survive his terrifying choking spell.

Phobias

Different Fears

Aichmophobia, a fear of sharp instruments; ailurophobia, a fear of cats; astraphobia, a fear of thunderstorms. The list goes on and on. Here at Mtn. Home High School we have created in our mirage-forming minds our own phobias such as:

"Not graduating because I'm afraid they will tell me I don't have enough P.E. credits." -Valerie Carter

"Get-it-done-or-else-o-phobia, having too little time and too many things to do, and I can't get it done!" -Chad Uchtman

"Mr. Purcell phobia, I'm afraid I will turn around and see Mr. Purcell following me with his walkee talkee." -Tonya Coleman

"Oh no! The DENTIST. No!No!No! Needles, drills, no!no!no! Please not me!" -Eric Watson

"Procrastination-o-phobia, always putting everything off until the last minute. I hate it." -Chris Taylor

"The fear of falling asleep in class and waking up to realize that I've drooled, and everyone is looking at me." -Anonymous

"Is-that-a-cop-behind-me-o-phobia." -Lee Loden

"The fear of having to simultaneously cross a narrow bridge with a Mack truck who is invading my half of the road." -Shay Murphy

"Fear of my mind wandering off and never coming back." -Chris Vest

PENNY MADLOLE

A Different Beat

Music Influences Students' Lives

The exact amount of dollars which high school students spent on car stereo equipment this year would be hard to estimate, but it seemed to be a trend worth investing in for many.

The popularity of rap music was carried over another year, however groups like Nine Inch Nails and remixes by the Cure provided thumping bass alternatives for those students with different musical tastes.

Music trends had a definite influence on fashion as well as entertainment. Although not too many people wore Madonna's pointy metal brassieres, there were leather jackets, t-shirts ranging from New Order to New Kids, the traditional Metallica patches on jackets and one or two "Manchester" hair cuts visible. Our conservative student body wasn't ready for the dreadlocks and Sinead look-alikes matched with Doc Martens popular of the urban club scene, but the thrill of driving up and down 62 without conversation due to the thunderous pageantry of woofers, tweeters, and whatever noises one could accumulate, was once again unsurpassed. Many cars in the school parking lot displayed "Rockford Fosgate", "Alpine", "Kicker", or "MTX"-a badge of thumping excellence for all to witness. Although much remained the same in terms of music interests among students, many eyes have been opened to alternative, folk, and reggae music which were more or less underground in Mountain Home when the early 80's rage hit America.

A national issue which received much attention this year was censorship of music. Groups such as 2 Live Crew and Jane's Addiction have been voices in the struggle, and many artists appeared in commercials urging people to vote for a voice against censorship. Whether you drove to Little Rock to see M.C. Hammer or Motley Crue in concert or to buy the import record that Wal-Mart didn't carry, it was obvious that the music world had an influence on different people.

Meghan Sanders, David Gombar, and Brad Dillard sport concert T-shirts and "Bowlheads".

JIMI WITT
To my friends may your lives be filled with peace and love. To Sonia, I will always love you!

REBECCA WOODS
To my family - I finally made it to my final year, and I never could have made it without you. I Love You!

JOE YOUNGER
About my senior years, they say that three times is a charm, but twice was good enough for me!

NATHAN ZELK

GREG KRUG
To the class of '91: We had a heck of a party, and we invented fun. P.S. Dear Candy Dillard, Try again.
